

90-Day Clean Leadership Goals Worksheet

In this Clean Language edition, use your own words and metaphors to surface what's really going on and what needs to happen next.

These questions are adapted from Clean Language, a questioning approach developed by David Grove. Clean Language questions are deliberately open and non-leading; they use your own words back to you, rather than introducing someone else's assumptions or interpretations. The goal is to surface how you actually think about your leadership, often through image, metaphor, or feeling, rather than jumping straight to a generic action plan.

How to Use this Worksheet

Read each question slowly. Write down the first response that comes to mind, even if it's a picture, a feeling, or a phrase rather than a literal answer. Don't edit yourself, and don't worry about making it sound polished. Wherever a question repeats a word in brackets like [X], replace it with whatever you wrote in your own previous answer.

Part One: Where You Are Now

And when you think about your leadership right now, that's like what? (Write down an image, a feeling, or a metaphor, not just a fact.)

“And is there anything else about that?”

What kind of [your metaphor] is that [your metaphor]?

And whereabouts do you notice that: in the situation, in your body, in your day?

And where could that come from?

Part Two: Your Desired Outcome

Now turn toward what you'd actually like to have happen. Use your own words, not a textbook goal.

And what would you like to have happen with your leadership over the next 90 days?

And when [that outcome] has happened, that's like what?

And is there anything else about that outcome?

And what kind of [your outcome-word] is that [your outcome-word]?

And whereabouts would you notice that, once it's happened?

Part Three: What Needs to Happen

This is the bridge between where you are and where you want to be.

And what needs to happen for [your present-scene answer] to become [your desired-outcome answer]?

Part Three (cont'd)

Ad what would it take for that to happen?

And what happens just before that shift begins?

And then what happens?

And is there anything else that needs to happen?

Part Four: Resources

You likely already have more of what you need than it feels like.

And what do you already know, or already have, that could help [that change] happen?

And where could that resource come from?

Part Four (cont'd)

And is there anything else about that resource?

Part Five: First Steps and Timing

Grounding the change in something concrete and time-bound.

And what evidence will you see or hear to know that this has begun?

And when does that happen?

And what happens right after that?

Part Six: Checking In

A final check before you close this worksheet...

And is there anything else you need to know, right now, before you begin?

30 / 60 / 90-Day Checkpoints

Use these prompts at each checkpoint to notice what's shifted. Write this in your own words, not as a status update.

Day 30	And when you check in today, what do you notice has happened? Is there anything else about that?
Day 60	And what has happened since day 30? And what happens next?
Day 90	And when [your original desired outcome] has happened, that's like what, now?

Want to Work through This Together?

Clean Language works best out loud, with someone asking the questions and holding the space. Ad Meliora Coaching offers a complimentary consultation. Schedule at www.admelioracoaching.com.

